

Prof. Dr. Ilona Skupinska
Lodz University, Poland

General information

Thank You for allowing me to come back after all these years, - during this time I was teaching, excavating, writing books and articles (ca. 150), administrating. Of course I also took care of my Family and Students and participated in sport - and some other activities. Among these activities of particular interest were the exhibitions concentrating on "women in antiquity", especially women from the south-eastern portion of our globe. This exhibition successfully visited several towns in Poland and Germany.

I wrote a catalog and hold lectures about women and her role in antiquity especially often during this period of time.

I also organized meetings with dispute on this subject; the meetings were well visited. meanwhile I was teaching and writing regular articles on actual subjects.

I also worked on my "habilitation", drawing a lot of experience from my one year long scholarship in USA (Michigan University, Ann Arbor). During my stay in USA , I had as well visited several other Universities, I gave lectures chiefly about Portraiture in Classical Antiquity.

I am enjoying to speak with other persons...

Now I am teaching at the Lodz University, Poland. Lodz is a native place to me ; I also keep the contact with the University of Oslo, where is my home. This University is in posesion of a large collection of antiquities from Cyprus, collected by baron Peter Ustinow. I was working on cataloging of pottery from his collection.
